OPERS Annual Statement begins mailing March 3

Who should read this notice
Human resources professionals

Situation overview
Starting March 3, 2008, all OPERS members—your employees—will begin receiving their OPERS Annual Statements on a rolling schedule. More than 330,000 personalized statements will be sent.

Re-employed retirees, members of the law enforcement division and those employees enrolled in the Combined Pension Plan will receive their annual statements the week of March 3, 2008. After that, approximately 80,000 personalized statements will be sent each week until the mailing is completed. The statements will be mailed according to zip code so it’s possible some employees will receive information more than four weeks after others.

What you need to do
Please encourage your employees to carefully review their Annual Statement for accuracy. In addition, employers are encouraged to handle questions as follows:

• Regarding distribution: We ask that all employers are aware of the mailing schedule for the OPERS Annual Statement so you can answer questions your employees might have.

• Regarding the Annual Statement information: The most common question OPERS receives after the Annual Statements are mailed is, “Why does the amount of earnings for 2007 shown on my statement differ from my W-2?”

 Usually, the answer is due to timing. Employers are required to report earnings based on when salary is earned, not when paid. Usually the discrepancy between the Annual Statement and the W-2 is because the last payroll of 2007 was included in the OPERS Annual Statement, but not on their W-2. This will be true if your last pay period in 2007 had an ending date in 2007, but your employees’ paychecks were dated for January 2008.

Another common explanation is due to the type of earnings reported to OPERS. Remember, not all types of compensation are considered earnable salary or pensionable earnings. Certain bonus payouts made during the year can cause a difference between the W-2 earnings and the OPERS Annual Statement earnings.

• If employees have additional questions, please direct them to contact the Member Services Center at 1-800-222-7377.

Why this is important
The OPERS Annual Statement has important information for individuals that will help them plan for the future. We know that employees look to their employer for guidance and, in some cases, interpretation of important documents. Your understanding of the distribution schedule and encouraging each employee to review their statement for accuracy will ultimately help your employees.
