Changes to certification process for OPERS disability applicants

Who should read this notice
Finance directors, payroll, human resource and benefits professionals of OPERS public employers

Situation overview
Employers are required to submit a Certification of Employee’s Final Payroll (DRF-85) for employees who have been approved by the OPERS Board of Trustees for disability retirement. The OPERS Board of Trustees considers disability applications at their regularly scheduled monthly meetings.

Once the Board of Trustees has approved a disability benefit application, the public employer is required to certify the last date of the individual’s public employment. A disability benefit cannot be paid until the public employer certifies the last day of earnings. Effective Nov. 26, 2012, OPERS will begin to notify electronic reporting employers of pending requests for certification of final payroll of a disability recipient by sending an outbound e-mail to ECS contacts with the online reporting role.

What employers need to do
Effective with the enactment of SB 343 on Jan. 7, 2013, a disability recipient must be off of the employer’s payroll (the last day earnings are reported) by the end of the month following the OPERS Board of Trustees approval of the disability benefit application. Employees who remain on the employer’s payroll (continue to earn wages) past this date will not have their disability benefit paid.

Employers should log in to ECS immediately upon receipt of the OPERS notification e-mail and complete the requested certification (DRF-85) so that an employee’s disability benefit is not impacted. This may require the employer to confirm the employee’s last date of compensation with the employee to ensure the last day of earnings is known and is prior to the end of the month following the Board of Trustee’s decision to grant the disability benefit.

Communicate with your employees who have applied for an OPERS disability so they are prepared to cease earning wages no later than the end of the month following the OPERS Board approval of their application.

Why this is important
Due to implementation of S.B. 343, the length of time an employee can remain on the employer’s payroll following the OPERS Board of Trustees’ approval has been shortened. Employees not adhering to these guidelines shall not receive their disability benefit.

Note:
The electronic and paper Certification of Employee's Final Payroll (DRF-85) has been updated to remove "title" as a required field.
